

Review for photoshoot "For the game"

My imagination

"Hello, you're Jeny, aren't you," I said to her as I passed her in the park? After a moment of surprise, she confirms. "My name is Jean-Jacques. I have been a fan and subscriber to your site for a long time." A pleasant conversation ensues. She's much prettier in real life than on my computer screen and she's really nice. During our discussion, which revolves around what she likes to do when she goes for a walk, despite my shyness, I decide to make a rather daring request to her. Showing off on command here, here, in this park. Deal, she said without hesitation and moving her hand towards me to validate the proposed game. In order to let me know her rules not to break, she sits on the metal bench to talk to me about them. I can't believe it and I listen to her but very quickly her face lights up with a big smile. She noticed that I wasn't just looking into her eyes. Yes, but how can you resist this magnificent landing strip? I understood at that moment that the game had started. Follow us and you will see.
