

An imagination inspired by video "Jeny rocking the bar"

After a long day's work, Mike, my client, offers me a drink in town in a new bar whose slogan is: "Here the music is good and you can do anything but be careful"

And for the surprises, we won't be disappointed.

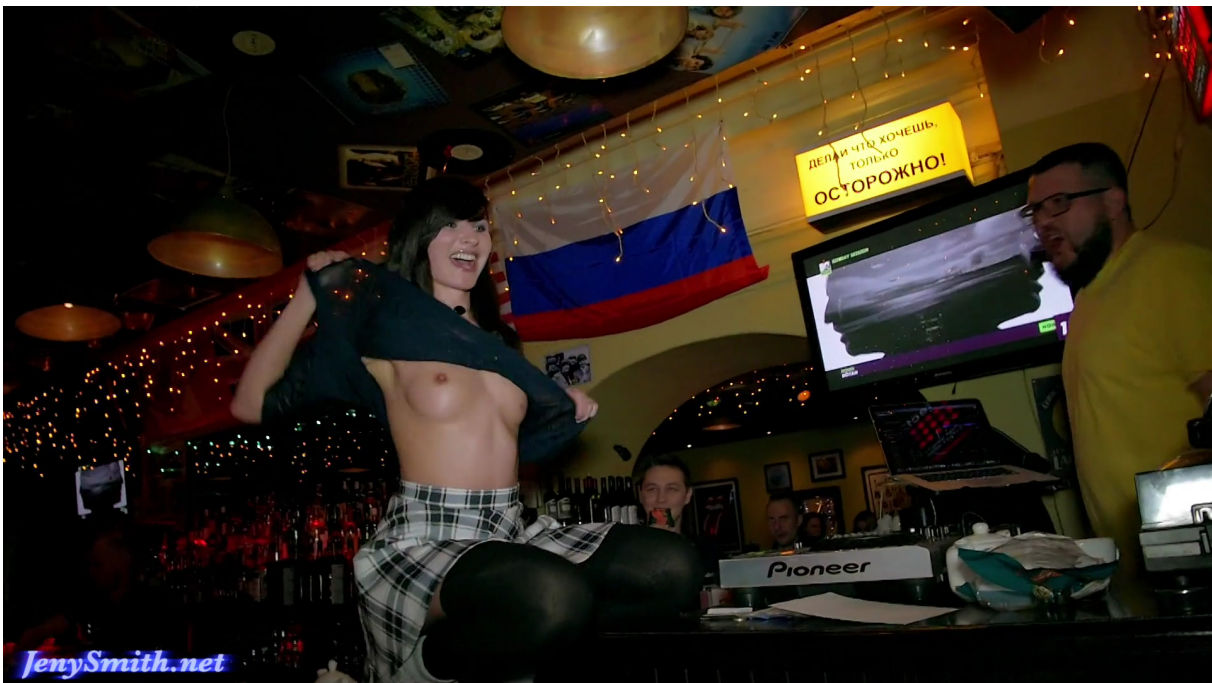

We sit in front of the counter and order beers. We chat with people around us and with the bartender. A girl is dancing all the way to my left and I don't pay attention until Mike nudges me because the girl approaches and climbs up on the counter.

I am immediately under the spell of this creature who continues to dance to the rhythm of the music. From where I stand, I can see that she is wearing a fairly short plaid skirt and a black blouse that is a little see-through.

Now all eyes are on her. Sometimes standing, she keeps her balance by holding her hands on the ceiling, sometimes on her knees, she walks towards us smiling. She has a kind word for each of us and small glasses of vodka are offered to her by both customers and the bartender, which encourages her to dance as close as possible to us. That's how I find out that our dancer isn't wearing underwear under her seamless tights.

The young woman's dance steps become more and more suggestive and I never tire of looking at her buttocks under her skirt that she voluntarily pulls up or admiring her breasts with erect nipples that she presents to us without shame.

After another drink, she takes off her skirt and walks around the room. Her tights hide nothing and we have the pleasure of discovering her wonderful landing strip that she shows us off with pleasure and without reserve.

After exchanging with us, Jeny, as she said her name, left on her husband's arm.

The evening went by way too quickly but I promised myself to come back, maybe for more surprises.
